

The Calc program follows the specifications laid out in the programs specifications. To call the program from the command line use the operator first, then first number, second number, and then write the expected output base for the fourth number. When putting in the input the program supports formats from any of the four types and can be of any base.